July 2012
And the USTSA Starter Flock Winner is . . .
Max Lane - Molt, Montana
Son of Calvin and Mylo Lane

My name is Max Lane, and I am 10 years old. Last year was my first year in 4-H and I took a market lamb. I really enjoyed the project and immediately decided I wanted to start my own flock. When I heard about the U.S. Targhee Sheep Association I thought it would be a great opportunity to get a flock going.

My interest in the Targhee breed is because Targhees have good wool. It is white with no other color which makes it dye easier, so it will sell better than other breed’s wool. Another interest is their good meat, you can sell meat from most breeds, but the Targhee breed has some of the best meat. I also like their size. They are medium size. Smaller than Rambouillet, but bigger than Oxford.

My family has experience in a few different animals. Presently, my father runs 200 head of cows, but in the past we had a bunch of sheep. My great grandfather ran a flock of 1200 sheep which he later passed down to my grandfather and uncle but they later sold out. I would like to bring the business back to the family. When I was born, my mom’s dad gave me one cow. After taking my market lamb project last year and learning I liked sheep so much, I asked my dad if I could sell him my cow and use the money to buy some ewes. Dad agreed. In January I purchased 5 mixed breed ewes. It has been fun taking care of them and lambing them out.

I have a lot of facilities because of the flock run by my great grandfather and grandfather. I have 3 barns, enough pasture and the equipment needed for raising the animals.

My intentions for the flock are to start small, add on every year, continue in 4-H, and in the future be a breeder.

Congratulations Max! We look forward to meeting you at Nationals.

Ranching Music Video Goes Viral

Agriculture just got a little more entertaining thanks to a new music video by the Peterson Farm Bros, a pro-ag group from Kansas. Their parody takes on “I’m Sexy and I Know It” to show “I’m Farming and I Grow It.” The video has had more than 1.6 million viewers.

Watch the video at www.youtube.com/watch?v=48H7zOQrX3U.
My name is Nancy McKay. I am a member of the Society for Creative Anachronism, an international organization dedicated to re-enacting life in pre-17th-century Europe. Our society will be 50 years old in 2015, and to celebrate the anniversary, members are taking up the Arts and Sciences 50 Challenge. To accomplish this, we pick an area of interest and try to accomplish a project with 50 components.

I am the fiber arts guild mistress of our Barony, and for my project I would like to research and spin wool from 50 varieties of sheep. To that end, would you be able to give me a good source to obtain a few ounces of Targhee, either fiber or roving that would exemplify the breed? My goal is to produce a notebook with fiber and knitted samples to display at our 2015 Pennsic War, which attracts over 11,500 people annually! I will also include a bibliography with a list of sources for the wool I use.

Many thanks in advance for your assistance!

NSIP At Our Fingertips

Can you believe we have been using Lambplan for two years now? Hopefully everyone has adjusted to the change in software, and is finding new areas to explore in Pedigree Wizard (PW) and Lambplan. There are many unique and helpful features in the PW software and its accompanying support websites. This article focuses on the U.S. NSIP website (www.nsip.org). The next installment will discuss the Australian Lambplan website (www.sheepgenetics.org.au). The sheep genetics world is at our fingertips, and by utilizing these websites we can keep current on important updates and continue our education.

U.S. NSIP, in particular Jerry and Mary Sorensen, have worked hard to present a website, which for the first time, encompasses information on all breeds currently enrolled in NSIP. It is a great place to discover recent data on Targhees and other breeds as well.

Under the NSIP/EDUC.INFO tab, you can find the Standard Procedures for enrolling in NSIP and the Enrollment form along with Pedigree Wizard (PW) Help and the PW Manual. Also listed is a chart of PW Accuracies. Go here to identify the accuracy thresholds needed for traits before EBVs are reported. For those contemplating having their sheep scanned for Muscle Depth and Backfat, there is a list of certified scanners and their contact information. Another critical bit of information for NSIP participants is the Data Run Calendar. Here you can see when data is due. Remember Armidale, New South Wales is 16 hours ahead of U.S. Mountain Standard Time. Deadlines for data submission need to be adjusted to correct for the time zone difference.

Also under NSIP/EDUC.INFO is the latest Targhee (Western Range Notebook) released by Dr. David Notter. Listed is a terrific discussion and useful definitions of the traits tracked through EBVs. New are Postweaning Scrotal Circumference and Ultrasonic Scanning EBVs. Next, have a look at the Seminars & Presentations tab. Microsoft PowerPoint Presentations are available to look through to keep up with current topics. Check out the NSIP Workshop by Sam Gill and the NSIP Office Presentation by Mary Sorensen for a quick run down on how NSIP functions. For more in depth discussions about sheep genetics review the Genetic Stakeholders presentations.

Another spot to visit is the ELITE/SIRESUM tab. It has been some time since we have had a Sire Summary for Targhees. As of June 19th a Targhee Sire Summary is posted and in the near future a monthly update is anticipated. Use this spot to identify rams and producers making their mark on the Targhee breed.

In the next issue of Targhee Talk, a tour of the Australian Lambplan website will be presented. Discover resources available for a greater understanding of how Lambplan works and the tools available to producers for collecting and entering data. Take a Lambplan tour from home. No flying or driving is necessary. Beat high fuel prices by utilizing the NSIP information available at your fingertips.

-Hope you enjoyed the first of many editions of a new feature in Targhee Talk compliments of Tracie Roeder.

Senate Passes Farm Bill

In a vote of 64 to 35, the 2012 Farm Bill passed out of the U.S. Senate. “The Senate version provides a measure of risk management for sheep producers that includes the Livestock Indemnity and Forage Programs in case of weather related losses, the wool marketing loan and, on the marketing side, livestock risk protection,” said Peter Orwick, executive director for the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI). “Additionally, it provides competitive grants at the department for strengthening the business side of the industry. “We appreciate Sen. Max Baucus (D-Mont.) for his leadership on the sheep issues. ASI and state associations from across the country thank the agriculture committee leaders and Senators that secured approval of the bill and opposed amendments on the floor that would have impacted the competitiveness of American sheep production,” continued Orwick.

Early in the week, in a deal between parties to move the legislation forward, the list of amendments to receive votes was trimmed from some 300 to 73.

Amendments with importance to the sheep industry included: the amendment to end mandatory crop checkoff funds and make them voluntary was defeated; the amendment to reduce crop insurance sales costs to restore some $4.5 billion in cuts to nutrition program spending was defeated; an amendment to place a $250,000 adjusted gross income eligibility marker for farmers was defeated; and the amendment that places a $75,000 cap on marketing loan pay limits did pass. The focus now switches to the House of Representatives. The House Agriculture Committee is scheduled to begin marking-up its version of the Farm Bill on July 11.
