Greetings from southwestern Ohio! My name is Jamie Skinner and I am the youngest child of John and Susie Skinner. I have twin sisters that are seniors in high school. My dad was raised on a large sheep farm in southeastern Ohio and my mom worked her way through college working in the sheep barns at Ohio State University. Both have a good sheep background to help me with this venture. My mom is a 6th grade Science and Math teacher and my dad is a meat cutter at a local grocery store. Together, we live on a 175 acre farm where we raise cattle, sheep, chickens, horses, and hay.

As I begin to plan my FFA experiences with my chapter advisors, I know that I want to work with livestock and particularly sheep. My family purchased our first flock two years ago; twenty Suffolk and crossbred ewes that we breed to a Suffolk ram. I like sheep because they are smaller than our cows and I can handle them myself. For example, my mom had surgery this winter and was unable to do a lot in the lambing barn, so I took over that job. She served as my advisor and only had to help me with two very difficult deliveries. I was proud that I only lost two lambs over the course of the season; one was still born and the other was a weak lamb. My live lambing percentage was 197% this season! A couple of the lambs will become my 4-H market lambs, a few are becoming replacement ewes and the rest will be sent to market.

After reading about this opportunity to win a starter flock of Targhee sheep in Sheep! magazine I did some research on the breed. I was pleased to learn that they are good mothers and have a good milking ability; meaning they will allow me to maintain my high lambing percentage another year. I was interested in their combination of meat production and fleece production in addition to their mothering ability. We currently do not have “fleece producing” ewes but have a few people in our area that have inquired about wool for dyeing and weaving. With a Targhee flock I could meet this demand. Any wool left over would be marketed to Mid-West Wool Growers in Columbus, Ohio.

My family discussed the possibility of the Targhee fitting into our current sheep operation. We graze our sheep behind our cattle in a pasture rotation. We do this because the sheep will “clean up” grasses that cattle find undesirable. We bring the sheep to the barn lot in the evening for protection from any predators. We were happy to discover that the Targhee Sheep Association was founded with the aim of developing profitable range raised sheep that would require little in the way of management. The modern Targhee is sturdy and robust. It produces high quality lamb and wool without the need for expensive supplements or special living conditions. This breed will fit into our current sheep management system easily. Continued on P. 2.

The final reason I would like to win this starter flock is to be able to show registered sheep at the Ohio State Fair. I went to the Market Lamb show with my family last year and I really want the chance to show some of my own sheep there in the future. I have looked at the Ohio State Fair schedule and Targhee breeding sheep show the first weekend in August. I may not be able to attend in 2010, but by 2011, I would compete at this level as part of the agreement to receive this flock.

Winning this starter flock would be a dream come true for me. I would have a registered flock of sheep of my own to use as my FFA project and to show at local and state fairs. I would be able to market the lambs and the fleece locally and I would be able to build my flock into something I could be proud of. I hope that you will consider me for this opportunity. Congratulations Jamie - we did!!

Meet Your USTSA Members

John & Carolyn Green - Melville, Montana

Where were you born and raised? Is this where you currently live? John was born in Melville, Montana, and we still live on the ranch where John was raised. Carolyn was born and raised in Altadena, California.

When did you become acquainted with Targhee sheep? How long have you raised them? John became acquainted with Targhee sheep through Arvid Larson and Curt Hughes (Betty Sampsel’s father). He studied Sheep Production under Van Horn at Montana State College and became more aware of Targhees. While learning about wool on the Wool Judging Team at MSC under Jim Drummond and Ken Coleman he learned more about Targhee wool. John and his dad bought their first Targhee rams from Don Anderson, who had a flock of Targhee sheep, as an FFA project and to save money to go to college. Carolyn learned about Targhee sheep from John.

John and Carolyn attended the Targhee National Show and Sale in 1976 in Billings where they purchased their first registered Targhees. They were a pen of 3 yearling ewes from Bob Innes, a yearling ewe from Beastrom’s, a yearling ewe from Southern Utah State College, and a ram from Larry Arnold.

What is your favorite Targhee trait? Just one?? There are many?? They are good mothers, prolific, hardy and readily adapt to range conditions. And, we love their beautiful wool.

What is the greatest issue facing the sheep industry and/or American agriculture? Trying to keep an eye on the government and environmental extremists. We have laws and regulations that can or will affect us being decided by people that have no idea about our business. Their theories may all sound good, but they have no idea about the real world we live in.

Are you married? Do you have children? How many? Is anyone else in your family involved in the sheep industry? Yes, we ARE married. We have 2 sons and both like the ranch life. Keith is a contractor, and Neal works on the ranch with us. Neither is particularly interested in the sheep business, however, they both will admit that the sheep are a necessary part of our operation. They EAT WEEDS!

Do you have an occupation other than farming or ranching? What is it? Carolyn created a yarn company using the wool from our flock of Targhee sheep. She operated the company for 15 years before selling it - Sweet Grass Wool - Helena, Montana.

Other than raising sheep, what are some of your hobbies and talents? Do you volunteer your time for any religious or civic organizations? Both John and Carolyn served their church in many positions: council members, teaching, maintenance, and choir. John was on the Sweet Grass County Conservation District board for over 25 years, and has been a member of the Melville Fire Crew since its beginning. John plays his harmonica for his own entertainment. Along with the sheep, Carolyn’s priorities are her family, working with her church women’s group, gardening, cooking, volunteers with Hospice, and being in touch with family and friends.

What is your favorite book? We like reading “Western Ag Reporter” and “Range” magazine. Carolyn likes “Sunset” and cooking magazines.

The one thing people would be surprised to know about me is: Carolyn seldom goes to bed before 1:00 am. Also she graduated from Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, California with a degree in Animal Science. John enjoys riding his 1976 Honda Gold Wing.

Short Term Ewes Needed!
Warren & Judy Nellis (989-465-6210) have a market for short term ewes - 100+. Ewes do not need to have solid mouths. But, good bags are a must. They are willing to haul from the West.
Junior Member Profile

Kendall Green - Cohagen, Montana

Tell us about yourself (age, grade, place you live). I am 17, and will be a Senior at GCDS (Jordan) this year. We raise Targhee sheep and Angus cattle near Cohagen, Montana. (Kendall is the son of Mike & Thelma.)

When did you acquire your first Targhee sheep? How long have you raised them? In about 1st grade my brother and I started taking bum lambs to the fair in the open class. When I was old enough to be in 4-H, I traded my black face sheep to Dad and my brother TJ, for Targhee ewe lambs. Dad let me pick out of his registered ewes.

What is your favorite Targhee trait? Their attitude. They are much more well behaved than TJ’s sheep.

What is your best piece of advice to other 4-H and FFA members raising sheep? Tame and train them to lead early. Keep really good records. Also, stick to Targhee.

Is anyone else in your family involved in the sheep industry? My whole family, Dad and Mom run registered and commercial Targhees and sell registered rams. My brother raises a few black face sheep also.

Other than going to school, do you have another job? Working for Mom and Dad.

Other than raising sheep, what are some of your hobbies and talents? Do you volunteer your time for any religious or civic organizations? I enjoy team roping, fishing, hunting, and riding colts. I am a 4-H ambassador, part of Teen Leader club, and involved in FFA, BPA, basketball, religious ed, and the Little Dry Roping Club.

What is your favorite book? Too many to name.

What is your favorite food? Spaghetti or fish, anything that Mom, my Aunts or Grandmas cook.

When I grow up my future occupation might be: I plan to get my degree at Montana State University in Ag Business, work somewhere else for a few years, and then come back to the ranch someday.

The one thing people would be surprised to know about me is: I plan to get my pilot’s license so I can fly my Grandpa’s super cub.

Targhee Tails & Trails

Mail Bag

Lambs in litters are not recommended unless you want bum lambs period! Mother nature designed the ewe to feed only two lambs. I worked against mother nature when I selected for multiple births and she made a fool out of me.

Too soon old - too soon smart!

Appointed to the American Lamb Board

Congratulations to Betty Sampsel of Stanford, MT - Hughes- Newford Company - for being named to the American Lamb Board representing sheep producers. Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack appointed Betty to the Lamb Promotions, Research, and Information Board in January. She will serve a 3 year term.
Origin of a Name
Reprinted from the October/November 1987 Targhee News & Notes

“Most members know the Targhee breed was named for the Targhee National Forest where the Dubois sheep (U.S. Sheep Experiment Station) graze in the summer. However, the following is how the forest was named.

The forest’s name is derived from an Indian warrior of the Bannock tribe at Fort Hall during the 1850’s and 60’s. Targhee was second in command to the chief, and his name first brought attention when he asked that a letter be sent to the Governor explaining that supplies promised to the Indians by treaty had not arrived.

Fort Hall Reservation was given to the Indians in 1867. By then Targhee was chief, and he signed the treaty with two provisions, the Indians would be allowed to go on an annual buffalo hunt into Montana and no white men, except necessary Government officials, would live on the Reservation. The Government failed to live up to the agreement; in turn, the Indians roamed at will. Another meeting was arranged and another treaty signed. Again the Government failed to supply the food and blankets agreed upon. The younger braves wanted to raid the white people, but Targhee held them in check until the state of Idaho supplied three thousand dollars from state funds to meet the commitment made by the Federal government.

When Buffalo hunters returned from Montana in 1871, they sadly reported that Targhee had died. His death was deeply mourned by his people. No other chief rose who was powerful enough to hold the young braves together. In 1878 the whole tribe went on the warpath. They were still not receiving their supplies and, without Targhee, no amicable settlement could be reached.

In honor of Chief Targhee the Forest Service named the lands on which he roamed the Targhee National Forest. The trail the Bannocks used to cross the Continental Divide into Montana is called Targhee Pass.”

Tell APHIS" Launched

The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) understands that stakeholder and customer interchange is essential for the agency to successfully carry out its mission of protecting the health and value of American agriculture and natural resources.

To this end, APHIS has developed a new tool to allow for greater exchange of ideas online. "Tell APHIS," at http://tellaphis.usda.gov/, is a new internet site that allows APHIS to post questions or concepts and use targeted email and new media tools, such as Twitter, to alert stakeholders to new information and ask for input.
